

HOW TO BRIBE A TRAFFIC OFFICER.

April 7, 2017

1 ABSTRACT.

On many occasions, we are faced with penalties we wish to skip without payment but because they are imposed on us, we are left with no options but to pay for them. In this report, I have organized a few steps on what I believe can help one pay a simple tip to a traffic officer in order to avoid the big burden of a penalty that may have been imposed in the first place.

1.1 Introduction.

We often think of bribing as greasing someones palm something low-handed or even illegal. Some cases of bribery may be unethical or even illegal, but most people use bribery in regular daily interactions! A bribe, in the everyday context, is offering anyone a gift in return for an action or decision the person otherwise might not make. By being aware of who and how to bribe in a given situation, you can maximize the return you get for your bribe!

1.2 Methodology.

Make sure your tip is ready in your hands or pockets. Be confident in what you are doing as if it is not a crime. Stay calm and keep your eyes keen.

1.3 Procedures.

Get out of the car or off the motorcycle and pretend as if you dont know what you have done. Remember to be confident in the first place while asking the officer what is wrong. Dont cause chaos, because it might call the attention of other people. Harmonize and Hamble your voice in a way that tricks the officer into accepting the bribe. Pull out your bribe and give it to him/her silently and make sure no one has traced the situation. If he/she refuses think about other means like mobile money transfer because once you fail from there the next step is disastrous.

1.4 Result.

There's a better chance an officer will agree to a specific action, rather than a vague objective. However, if the officer accepts, be appreciative because you might fall victim of the same scenario again and also share your number and email address such that next time when you are caught he may help you through again.

1.5 Conclusion.

In conclusion bribing is not a good idea, however when you go through try not to do the same mistake again.
